1. Prep ingredients

Bring 1L (4 cups) water to the boil in a medium saucepan for the rice. Thinly slice the chorizo. Finely chop the onion. Cut the capsicum into 1-2cm chunks. Finely chop the parsley, keeping the leaves and stems separate. Crush or finely chop 2 garlic cloves. Rinse and drain the corn.

2. Cook rice

Cook the rice in the pan of boiling water for 25 mins or until tender. Drain.

3. Cook chorizo

Meanwhile, put the chorizo in a cold medium deep frypan over medium heat. Cook, turning, for 4-5 mins until golden. Remove the chorizo from the pan with a slotted spoon, reserving any chorizo oil in the pan.

4. Add veggies and rice

Add 2 tsp olive oil to the pan and heat over medium heat. Add the capsicum, onion, garlic and parsley stems, season with salt and pepper and cook, stirring, for 5 mins or until soft. Add the chorizo, cooked rice and corn and cook, stirring, for 2-3 mins until warmed through. Remove the pan from the heat.

5. Serve up

Add half the parsley and 2 tsp worcestershire sauce, if desired, and stir to combine. Taste, then season with salt and pepper. Divide the jambalaya among bowls, scatter with the remaining parsley and enjoy.

6. Did you know?

Jambalaya, one of New Orleans' most famous dishes, is thought to be French, African and Spanish in origin, similar to a paella.
